1. There was a 4,000x4,600-foot airfield just west of the RATSKIYE POLYANY (51°4'E/56°14'N) (Udmurt ASSR) railroad station. The field had no runway but was serviceable at all times due to its location on a plateau.
2. The field was never occupied for a prolonged period but seemed to be an intermediate landing field for the Siberian air-lines.
3. A fuel dump with three or four underground fuel tanks was on the eastern edge of the field.
